Charles Waldheim: Selected Bibliography

“Landscape, Ecology, and Other Modifiers to Urbanism”
Spitzer School of Architecture Lecture – October 17, 2013

About:

The John E. Irving Professor of Landscape Architecture and Chair of the Department of Landscape Architecture at Harvard’s GSD, Charles Waldheim teaches courses in the histories, theories, and contemporary practices of landscape architecture and urbanism. His design studios’ focus is “the intersection of landscape and contemporary urbanism.” According to his GSD site, Waldheim coined the term “landscape urbanism” which he explains, “describes emerging landscape design practices in the context of North American urbanism.” He has written and lectured widely.
