Robert Twombly: Selected Bibliography

“What Sullivan Meant in the Past and What he Offers the Present”
Spitzer School of Architecture Lecture – March 15, 2012

About:
A recently retired Distinguished Professor of Architectural History at the Spitzer School of Architecture, Robert Twombly has also taught at the University of Paris and held the Walt Whitman Chair in American Civilization at the University of Leiden (Netherlands). Post retirement he has conducted spring seminars at CCNYon 20th century architects. Twombly earned his degrees from Harvard and the University of Wisconsin. He has published biographies of Frank Lloyd Wright and Louis Sullivan, as well as Power and Style: A Critique of Twentieth-Century Architecture in the United States and also edited a number of other books. Twombly’s most recent book (with Narciso Menocal) is Louis Sullivan: The Poetry of Architecture, published by W. W. Norton. He is currently at work revising a manuscript tentatively entitled Philip Johnson’s Fascist Career,1933-1940.

Books:

Books listed above are available in the CCNY Architecture Library unless otherwise noted.

Articles (Selected from 1988—2002):

Note: Review of Louis Sullivan: the poetry of architecture.

Twombly, R.  “Louis Sullivan’s First National Bank Building (1919-1922), Manistique, Michigan.”  Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians v. 60 no. 2 (June 2001) p. [200]-207. available online for CCNY users at "ejournals A to Z" mh7cb7jt5p.search.serialssolutions.com

Articles listed above are available in the CCNY Architecture Library unless otherwise noted.

Web Sites:

Judy Connorton image: beinecke.library.yale.eduFebruary 2012