Brian Healy:  Selected Bibliography

“REFLECTED LIGHT”
Spitzer School of Architecture Lecture – March 13, 2014

About:

After earning his MArch at Yale, Brian Healy worked in the offices of Cesar Pelli and Richard Meier before establishing his own firm Brian Healy Architects in 1986. This award-winning firm has completed a number of residential, commercial, and multi-use projects. The firm’s work includes the Children’s Chapel for the Korean Church of Boston, the Mill Center for the Arts (Hendersonville, NC), and Chicago’s Initiative to Redefine Public Housing. Healy served as the BSA 2004 President and as a member of the Design Advisory Panel for the Rose Kennedy Greenway in Boston. In addition to his practice Healy has taught at Harvard’s GSD, Yale, Penn and MIT among other schools of architecture. He is a Distinguished Visiting Professor at CCNY’s Spitzer School of Architecture, a position he also held at Roger Williams University. In 2011 he became the Design Director at Perkins+Will in Boston.

Books:

Architectural League of New York. 40 under 40; an exhibition of young talent in architecture. 1966.

Articles: (Selected from 2000 – 2009)

“Brian Healy Architects: Mill Center for the Arts, Hendersonville, North Carolina.” Architecture 2006 Apr., v.95, n.4, p.35.

“Brian Healy Architects: children's chapel and community center, Brookline, Massachusetts.” Architecture 2006 Apr., v.95, n.4, p.36.

Articles listed above are available in the CCNY Architecture Library unless otherwise noted.

Web Sites:

August 2013 Video: Brian Healy Speaks of Designing Communities that Respond to Climate Change at TEDx Conference - See more at: http://www.perkinswill.com/news/brian-healy-floatyard-tedx-boston.html#sthash.ozh30hGs.dpuf

Architect. 2008 P/A Awards. www.architectmagazine.com/design/brian-healy-architects.aspx A discussion of the architectural competition celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Korean Church of Boston, the Children's Chapel and Community Center.